

Colliers International Launches National Seniors Housing Practice Group; Appoints Mark Silver as National Director

June 24, 2010

NEW YORK, NY — Colliers International announced the formation of its Seniors Housing Practice Group, continuing its expansion and investment into best-in-class service lines with a national reach.

The Seniors Housing Practice Group will provide integrated services of brokerage, capital markets and strategic planning to owners and investors across all sectors of senior housing and healthcare, including independent living facilities, assisted living facilities, nursing homes dementia facilities, continuing care retirement communities, surgical centers, medical office buildings and hospitals.

In addition the company has recruited renowned real estate executive Mark Silver as National Director to lead the group's formation and management. Operating out of the New York office, Silver will oversee the day-to-day management and business development for this specialty group, build its profile on a national basis and leverage Colliers International's capabilities to serve clients in the senior housing sector across all U.S. markets. Silver was most recently Managing Director at Jones Lang LaSalle and co-Head of the National Seniors Housing Group. He also previously served as a Senior Director and an integral member of the Seniors Housing Group at Cushman & Wakefield.
